

You don't have to attend the Washington D.C. Fountain Pen SuperShow to purchase the official show ink, the Monteverde 2026 Special Edition D.C. Supershow Fusion Red. The water-soluble, pH-balanced ink is a rich red that runs from burgundy and crimson to ruby and pink depending on nib size and paper texture. Monteverde's Fusion Red comes in a 30 ml glass bottle with a label in matching red. Fusion Red is available only while supplies last.

The Jan Zander Design Sculpture Pen is a new kind of limited edition fountain pen project that invites artists from various disciplines to contribute their expertise to the bodies of Jan Zander writing instruments. As the debut pen, Sculpture Pen No. 1 is entirely designed by Zander. It features a ribbed body accent that is hand-crafted from solid bronze matched to long, finely sanded grenadilla wood barrel and cap ends. The long grip section is composed of a deep blue acrylic with iridescent swirls. The Jan Zander Design Sculpture Pen No. 1 cartridge/converter-filling fountain pen has a 14 karat gold nib in a number of widths. Each Sculpture Pen is a limited edition of three, and at the time of printing, only two No. 1s remain.

South Korea's Wearingeul already has a whole collection of inks inspired by L. Frank Baum's series of children's books set in the fantastic land of Oz. The newest ink, the Wearingeul Wonderful Wizard of Oz, gets its name from the book that began the phenomenon, and it gets its hue from one of the most important colors in the book series: emerald green. The glistening ink has silver particles to go along with its multitone green pigment. The Wearingeul Wonderful Wizard of Oz is suitable for most fountain pens, however it is recommended to flush one's fountain pen regularly to prevent blockages. The ink comes in Wearingeul's square 30 ml glass bottles.
